Our Story

Owners Dwight and Jean Crevelt have returned to their roots in the Midwest after 30 years in Las Vegas to open a winery. Dwight was born in Kansas City but his family moved 9 times before landing in Las Vegas for his High School years. He did spend every summer at his grandparent's home in Walnut Grove, MO. Jean is from Sigourney, IA where several generations of her family live. They met at Iowa State University and returned to Las Vegas where Dwight designed slot machines and player tracking systems.

After 30 years in Vegas they both wanted to return to a less hectic lifestyle, they purchased land adjacent to Dwight's grandparent's farm and since they were not traditional farmers or ranchers decided to build a winery. In preparation to open the 7C's Winery, they took classes at Vesta-USA.org and attended the Mid-west Grape and wine symposium for five years. Also they visited 100s of wineries to research the business, a tough job but someone had to do it. While planning the winery Jean's mother asked if we needed another investor? With Jean, Dwight and their 4 children that made 6 C's (Crevelt) and Jean's mother Irene Cassens became the 7th C. Given that the winery is located in the middle of Missouri cattle country they chose 7C's as their brand.
